Garratt's today announced the appointment of Dr. David Wheeler as Academic Principal of the Academies Australasia Group of Colleges.

Dr. Wheeler is presently Assistant Professor of Physics and Head of the Department of Physics at Mahanakorn University of Technology, Bangkok, Thailand. He has been representing Australia's University of New South Wales in Thailand since 1994 and has lectured at universities and educational institutions in Australia, Asia, Europe and USA.

Under the stewardship of Dr. Wheeler, the Physics Department at Mahanakorn has gained international recognition. It is now one of the largest university physics teaching departments in the world.

Dr. Wheeler holds the degrees of Bachelor of Science (with First Class Honours in Physics) and Doctor of Philosophy (in Physics) from the University of New South Wales together with a Graduate Diploma in Education from Sydney Teachers' College.

Mr. Christopher Campbell, Group Managing Director of Garratt's and Chairman of the Academies Australasia Group, said that the Garratt's Board is delighted that Dr. Wheeler was attracted to join the Group. Mr. Campbell said that Dr. Wheeler's vast international experience and expertise in education, especially in the area of information technology where he is well regarded for his contributions to teaching using multimedia and the Internet, will further strengthen the resources and reputation of the Academies Australasia Group.

The Academies Australasia Group is made up of an English College, a High School and four Vocational Colleges and has students from about 50 different countries.
